Report It. Sort It!

There is now a new law to protect retail workers in Scotland

Usdaw has successfully campaigned for a law to protect retail workers from violence at work. From 24 August it is a specific crime in Scotland to abuse, threaten or assault a retail worker.

Retail workers suffer shocking violence and abuse every day at work and this new additional protection will mean nothing if retail crime is not reported.

Make sure you report any incidents of violence or abuse that happen to you or a colleague to your employer, the police and your Usdaw rep.

Unreported retail crime deprives the victims of justice, and can skew crime figures to mask the true scale of the problem.
